FIRE WARNING

As springtime approaches we are reminded of the fact that many people will be burning tobacco beds, sedge fields, and brush from new ground clearings. There is always a danger that such fires may get out of hand and burn adjacent woodlands. There were 115 fires on the Red river district of the Cumberland national forest last year. Nine of these fires were caused by lightning storms during the dry weather last summer. All the others were the result of human carelessness in the form of brush burning, smoking, bee hunters, locomotive sparks, and in a few cases just plain malicious woods burning.

The beneficial effects of protection against forest fires can already be seen in our woodlands in the form of new green undergrowth containing valuable timber species.

Good citizens will wish to preserve these values and will be careful not to allow fire to escape to woodlands while doing their spring burning. Education should go far toward eliminating the small percentage of incendiary fires.

As a people, we are inclined to look too much to law. The first duty is with the citizen to conduct himself properly and with due regard to the accepted ethical standard.

Supreme Court Packing Controversy Increases

When the Supreme Court met last week, the controversy over the proposed change in the number of Justices was at its height. The bill, introduced by Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, would increase the number of Justices from nine to ten. The bill has been passed by the Senate and is now in the House. The controversy is centered around the fact that the bill would allow the President to appoint new Justices without the Senate's approval.

Sen. Johnson, of South Dakota, has introduced a bill to limit the President's power to appoint new Justices. He has argued that the President should not have the power to appoint new Justices without the Senate's approval.

The retirement bill was favored by the President but, as Senator Pat McCarran said, was not a part of Mr. Roosevelt's bill for enlargement of the court. The controversy over the latter measure grew more bitter day by day and to the surprise of the administration, it was found that it was likely to be defeated in the House. Therefore the majority leaders decided to let the Senate act first. In that body the decision rested with some twenty-five senators who had not yet announced their position.

Mr. Roosevelt stood firm in his determination to force the bill through Congress, and announced he would deliver a radio speech in its defense on March 9, the day before the one set for the start of Senate judicial committee hearings on the bill. The President denied a report that he would make a tour of the country in behalf of his plan.

Senator George of Georgia, Democrat, stepped into the fight with an assertion that the Supreme court enlargement proposal was a repudiation of the party's 1936 platform pledge that it would seek a clarifying constitutional amendment if it could not attain its social-economic welfare program by legislation.

In defense of the measure various members of the cabinet and heads of federal agencies began a speaking campaign.

Vidal Quits as Head of Air Commerce Bureau

EUGENE VIDAL has resigned as director of the federal air commerce bureau and says he will re-enter private aviation. His conduct of the bureau has been faulted by many of the airlines and a committee headed by Senator Charles McNary of Oregon has recommended his removal from the bureau. Mr. Vidal has been in the bureau since 1933 and has been a member of the Senate aviation committee since 1935.

Vidal is a lawyer and was a member of the Senate aviation committee in 1935. He was a member of the Senate aviation committee in 1935. He was a member of the Senate aviation committee in 1935.

Hughes and Jean Batten Get Harmon Awards

THE International League of Aviators announced in Paris that Howard Hughes, the wealthy American speedster, and Miss Jean Batten of New Zealand had been awarded the Harmon trophies as the outstanding man and woman in aviation for 1939. Hughes' landplane records in flights across the United States won the honor for him, and Miss Batten was rewarded for her spectacular solo flight across the South Atlantic.

The league awarded the special Harmon hero medal to Jean Mermod, French airmail pilot who disappeared with his crew after making twenty-four crossings of the South Atlantic, carrying mail to South America.

Ernst Lehmann, chief pilot of Germany's ocean-flying Zeppelins, was voted the world champion dirigible pilot, and Ernst Demyter, Belgian world champion for spherical aircraft.

Louise Thaden was voted the outstanding woman flier in the United States, and it was announced that President Roosevelt would present trophies to her and Hughes.

Farm Experts Approve AAA as Co-ordinator

THREE specialists in agricultural economics have been studying the modified Agricultural Adjustment administration as it has operated in relation to such important products as wheat, cotton, hogs and tobacco and their report, published by the Brookings institute, says it is a desirable addition to the nation's economic institutions.

The report concludes that a permanent adjustment agency should prove useful as a central coordinating body, or board of strategy, for an occupied and group composed of small and loosely organized operating units such as in agriculture. It recommends the continuance of the Federal agency in order to assist farmers in adjusting their industry to economic and commercial conditions and to cushion the shock of disasters such as drought and flood.

As for crop insurance, the belief is expressed that a system of all-risk insurance under government ownership would prove financially sound and beneficial to farmers if premiums and indemnities could be kept on a true actuarial basis. It insists, however, that crop insurance should not be mixed up with the ever normal granary proposal.

To the whole ever normal granary idea in general the Brookings report is unfavorable.

"Peace Before Colonies," Eden Tells Ribbentrop

JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP, German ambassador to London, had a heart-to-heart talk with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden about Germany's desire to get back some of her lost colonies, and was told plainly that at present British public opinion was against such restoration.

Moreover, Eden said, the question was not one for Britain and Germany to settle alone but could only be dealt with by the League of Nations.

According to informed sources, the foreign secretary then went on to declare that before Great Britain even could consider returning the Reich's colonies or yielding League of Nations mandates over former German overseas possessions, the security of Europe must be established by a general accord.

Eden said the question of raw materials for Germany was one in which all the great powers who had control of principal raw materials were interested. In this connection, he said that while the league should settle the colonial matter, he could envisage an alternative method of approach through diplomatic channels.

President Asks State Soil Conservation Laws

IN IDENTICAL letters to the governors of the 48 states President Roosevelt called on the state legislatures to enact soil conservation laws which would supplement the federal measures designed to lessen the ravages of floods and dust storms.

Along with his letter the President sent the governors a copy of a model soil conservation bill prepared by the Department of Agriculture. This provided for the organization of soil conservation districts to carry on erosion control projects with federal aid and regulations for use of land.

According to the plan the suggested state laws would have no bearing on federal soil conservation laws. At present the enactment of state laws would be necessary before a state could receive any federal conservation funds.

Panama Canal Tolls Rate Revision Is Proposed

ABOLITION of the dual system of measurement of vessels passing through the Panama canal was asked by the President in a special message to Congress, in accord with a report of an advisory committee. Nothing definite was said about raising the revenue of the canal.

The War department recently assailed the present dual system of collecting tolls as permitting inequities, manipulations, and endless reductions in charges, resulting in losses to the United States and unfair advantages to shipping interests. At present the canal, a $560 million dollar investment, is losing a most a million dollars a year.

Manufacturers and other shippers of the Middle West have long maintained that the Panama canal toll charges are so low that the effect is to shift the burden of the cost of the canal to the shippers of the East and West. It is cheaper to ship by water from other coast than by rail from the Middle West. The middle westerners have urged that the rates be raised to give them equal footing with seaboard competitors and also to give promise of amortizing the canal investment.

Ex-Navy Officer Sentenced to Prison as a Spy

JOHN S. FARNSWORTH, former lieutenant commander in the United States navy, who had pleaded guilty to charges of conspiring to sell naval secrets to Japan, was sentenced by Justice Proctor in the District of Columbia court to serve from four to twelve years in prison.

Congress Gets Bill Dollar Housing Bill

SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER of New York and Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama introduced simultaneously in the Senate and House the administration bill setting up a program for the construction of homes for "families of low income."

Under the measure the government may lend to state or local housing authorities $1,000,000,000, from July 1, 1937, to July 1, 1941, the money to be raised by bond issues and the loans to be supervised by a new department, the United States Housing authority. To supplement the loans Congress is asked to appropriate $30,000,000 to be paid in outright grants. The loans are to bear interest at not less than the federal rate and are to be payable over such a period, not to exceed 60 years, as the authority may determine.

The four year program calls for the construction of 375,000 family dwelling units at an average cost of $1,000 a unit. Wagner and Steagall insisted that the bill called for "decentralization."

News of the Strikes, Sit-Down and Otherwise

HAVING virtually countenanced the sit-down strike in the case of the General Motors controversy, the administration found itself embarrassed by that favorite maneuver of John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Out in Monica, Calif., about 200 employees of the Douglas Aircraft corporation went on strike and "sat down" in the big plant, completely stopping work on $24,000,000 worth of airplanes the company is building for the government.

Finally the strikers were indicted for conspiring to violate two old California laws against forcible entry and trespassing, and when 200 armed deputies appeared at the plant, they surrendered and were taken to Los Angeles for arraignment.

Another big government job was halted for a time by a sit-down strike of employees of the Electric Boat company at Groton, Conn., which is building submarines for the navy. There, however, the local and state police soon evicted the trespassers and arrested them, and the rest of the employees, a large majority, resumed work.

Sit-down strikers in the plant of the Fawcett Metallurgical corporation at North Chicago, Ill., who defied court injunctions and were routed by a force of deputies and police armed with tear gas guns, and were arrested for contempt of court. Also taken into custody was the strike leader, Max Adelman, who had fled to Wisconsin. The strikers and their friends insisted they would prevent the reopening of the plant by strong picket lines and the corporation obtained an injunction against such procedure. The sheriff said he was prepared to deal with any act of violence. This is another C. I. O. strike, and Governor Horner of Illinois gained no glory in his efforts to settle it.

Study Plan for Crop Insurance

Idea Is to Try It
on Wheat in 1938;
How It Will Work
on Individual Farm

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON—The government is preparing to embark on the plan to insure the wheat crop of the country, beginning in 1938; and a bill to provide for the Federal Crop Insurance corporation, introduced by Senator Pope of Idaho is being studied. It follows the suggestion made by President Roosevelt in a recent message and incorporates the views of an agricultural department committee which has given long and serious thought to the matter.

It is certainly not a new idea. Crop insurance has been longed for and proposed and tried out here and elsewhere. The thing runs back a long way, but the first mention of it here was a Japanese trial made under the auspices of a German economist back in the eighties. Private insurance companies have tried it out disastrously in this country, (except as to hail insurance), failing because they bit off more than they could chew when they tried to insure crop prices in addition to crop yields.

In this new government crop insurance ideal the premiums will be paid in wheat or a cash equivalent, a lien on the crop, or some other security. But one definite proposal is to use the premiums thus collected to build up a vast storage of wheat against the day when a national shortage requires going to the bins and distributing the stored-up wheat.

The immediate query from individuals is "How it will work on an individual farm?" It works like insurance on anything else—business enterprise or human life. The amount of insurance on any farm is to be determined by the average yield on that particular farm; the farmer to be insured a percentage on the average yield of his farm over a period of years. This insures the crop and not the price. The examples given to Congress by the President are based upon a six year average. This provides for low premiums on farms with low average yields, but it does not prevent a good coverage on farms that produce good yields. Wherever possible both the premium and the indemnity are to be in bushels of wheat.

On one farm where figures were used for the purpose of a simple explanation, the average yield per acre for six years was eight bushels. To insure a wheat crop on that farm the experts conclude that a premium of one and one third bushels of wheat would be charged. This is one single farm, in a section near Washington, D. C. The principle would be the same elsewhere, but the figures might be different.

Although the insurance corporation which would be set up under the present plan will be able eventually to insure other crops, wheat is chosen as the first to be insured for two reasons: One, the wheat farmers appear to be more strongly united behind the idea; two, because the program is experimental and it seems wiser to start with a single commodity. In addition, there is a further limitation, the insurance will probably be open only to farmers participating in the present soil erosion program, because this crop insurance plan will be made a part and parcel of the whole extensive agricultural program. Paraphrasing it should be said that the administration's agricultural experts believe the best crop insurance program was the A. A. program which has been killed by the Supreme court's idea that agriculture is a local and not an interstate affair.

Statistical sharks working on the possibilities of insured wheat crops say that had there been widespread wheat-crop insurance during the past six years, wheat farmers actually would have received some of the benefit of increased prices—a blessing generally saved for the speculators instead of the producers. This would come about by means of the storage of wheat from premiums in good years and the reduction of such reserves in the poor years. They base this on the returns from the great plains area. Payment of premiums with wheat in that area from 1930-1932 inclusive would have piled up a 75,000,000 bushel wheat reserve. In the next three years the droughts would have wiped out the reserves, for they would have been paid back to drought stricken insured wheat farmers. Paying that insurance back in wheat would not net the farmers a profit. The wheat paid in premiums would have been worth $100,000,000 a profit of $40,000,000 to the wheat farmers of the great plains. It looks good. Whether or not this speculative feature is authentic, the best view here is that crop insurance will reduce to some extent the need for seed loans, feed loans, drought relief and similar emergency aids. Because of this reduction in relief the government would be justified in contributing toward the administration and storage expenses of a crop insurance corporation. The federal expenditures in agricultural relief total about $615,000,000 for the past ten years; and this does not include the A. A. benefit payments.

Government experience in insurance includes the famous war risk insurance, insuring ships under the American flag. The insurance placed was $2,250,000,000, the premiums collected $46,000,000; the losses paid $29,000,000—profit! $17,000,000. The cost of administering this enormous business for four years was only $165,000, which is proof that government can run a business.

A large section of the power trust has decided it is cheaper to obey the holding company act and register with the Securities and Exchange commission than fight it. So the two tremendous holding companies known as the North American company, ($1,250,000,000) and the American Water Works and Electric company, ($500,000,000) have placed their names on the register in the office of Jim Landis, keen and tireless chairman of the S. E. C. That means 67 out of 265 Power Trust Holding companies submit voluntarily to government regulations. The rest are still holding out, possibly waiting for the final settlement of the law suit brought by one of the granddaddies in the Power Holding company field—the huge Electric Bond and Share corporation which has so far refused to sign on the dotted line, refuses to register, and declares that if a holding company registers as a holding company with the SEC, it loses or rather waives all its constitutional rights in any other matter between the power trust and Uncle Sam.

This sounds as if they were scared to register, but already a federal court in New York (Judge Mack) rules that they must do so under the law, and although that case may be taken to the Supreme court, the two big shots of the power world mentioned above concluded that they had enough of the fight and voluntarily threw up their hands.

The power trust need not be credited with a change of heart on any account except that it is cheaper to comply with the law than not. You see these huge companies need to issue stock and sell bonds constantly. They could refinance themselves—all of them—right now, at a great saving because interest rates are lower than they have been for years. These corporations could easily call in hundreds of millions of dollars worth of their existing securities and issue new securities in their place at much lower interest rates and save millions a year. BUT under these securities and exchange laws (SEC) they are not permitted to issue any securities at all unless they come in and register. Those companies which have registered have had the benefit of this new low interest rate; some of the others may drag on too long—and sink of their own weight with all this old fashioned high interest rates on their backs.

The necessity to register is a part of the holding company act which contains the famous "death sentence," which is the section empowering the SEC to order the dissolution or separation of large, useless, or corrupt holding companies. Many of these large concerns will be taken apart. That will not affect the operation of electric light and power companies, but it will prevent too powerful a control over billions of dollars worth of other folks' money by a small group of financiers. Nor will there be any great losses; in fact in some instances there will be a profit to the stockholders. Furthermore, the dissolving process will take a long time.

This government, trying to juggle battleships and world peace all at once, finds it necessary to authorize the building of two new tremendous battleships that will cost $50,000,000 apiece—and thus serve notice on the rest of the world that while we regret it—we are not going to stand by and take a dare from anyone. The world's attempts to limit naval armaments and expenditures was a farce to nearly every nation except the United States of America.

We now have fifteen battleships, all were permitted to have under former treaties. Battleships, it should be recalled, are the central floating fortresses around which whole fleets of lighter vessels, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aeroplanes operate. They have the long range guns; the greatest threat.

We are not superior in battleship strength. England has 19 and is building two. England ruefully announces a tremendous naval building program costing seven and a half billions—and that country is reeling from the idea of added taxes. Japan, already scraping the bottom of the till for cash, is adding eighty-eight vessels of all sorts to its fleet; France is building two battleships and four other warships.

There is a never ending discussion as to the efficacy of battleships versus aeroplanes. Can a battleship withstand the attack of an airplane? Both sides have good arguments—at any rate this country which ought to be supreme in the air, stands apart preparedness. We have 2,074 planes for war; Japan has just as many. Germany has 2,800 planes; France 4,000; Italy 4,400; Great Britain more than 4,600 and Russia is reported to have more than 5,000.

Lesson for March 14

JESUS PRAYING FOR HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT — John 16:26-32
GOLDEN TEXT — "That ye may be one with me, as the Father is in me, and I in the Father."
PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus Prayed for His Disciples
JUNIOR TOPIC — Did Jesus Pray for Me?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — Jesus Praying for His Disciples
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — Unity with God and One Another

The assurance that someone is praying for us is an anchor in a time of storm. Many a man or woman has been on the point of giving up in despair, of yielding to temptation, and has been carried through to victory by the intercession of a godly mother or father. Just to know that someone prays for us is to find strength for the knees that have weakened and for the heart that has all but failed. Infinitely more precious is the truth of our lesson, that the Lord Jesus himself prayed for each one of his followers. John 17:20 makes clear that while he prayed for those who were with him at the time, he also included in his petition all who since that day have come to believe on him because of their testimony.

Before entering upon his inexpressibly precious and beautiful prayer, the Lord gave to his followers a promise which was of vital importance.

I. A Promise (16:5-7).

Persecution is coming, and Jesus will not be with them to meet the trying hour. He is about to enter upon that final scene in his earthly life, which will bring it to its end in "a place called the place of a skull."

How then can he say to them that it is expedient for them that he go away? Because he will send the Comforter, the Holy Spirit. Students of the Scriptures recognize in the Holy Trinity an inscrutable mystery, but receive the teaching of the Bible concerning the ministries of the three persons in the one God-head with glad and thankful hearts. It is a subject which cannot be entered into here, but which richly rewards careful study. Suffice it to say that while the Holy Spirit has always been active in the world, he did enter upon a ministry of a special nature when Jesus had gone to be with the Father.

The essence of the work of the Holy Spirit is to glorify Christ (16:14), and in so doing he convicts the unbeliever of sin and guides the believer into all truth. The mark of a Spirit-filled Christian is that he permits the Spirit to glorify Christ in him and in his service for God.

II. A Prayer (17:14-26).

When one enters the sacred precincts of John 17 he feels that he has come into the holy of holies, and that he would not only lose the shoes from his feet, but also stand silent in worship and in praise. He prayed for me—4 or me! Each student of this lesson will wish to enter fully upon the meaning of these words as he re-reads them, in the illumination of the Holy Spirit. May I suggest three things which Jesus sought for his children?

1. Consecration (vv. 14-16). No one is Christ's child without consecration, but, sad to say, there are many children in his blessed household who are not obedient, not spiritually well and strong. They are in the world, they must be here, but alas too many of them want to be as much like the world as possible. He prayed that we might be kept from evil, separate from the world, kept by God even in a world that hates him and his truth.

2. Sanctification (vv. 17-21). This means to be set apart and cleansed for God's service. How is it accomplished? Through the truth. His Word is the instrument of sanctification. Little wonder that there is so little holiness of living when the Word has so little opportunity to touch and cleanse the life.

This separated life brings God's people into that unity of love—all in Christ, and he in the Father—all bound up in that "one great bundle of love."

3. Glorification (vv. 22-26). When Jesus came into the world in the flesh he voluntarily laid aside the glory which was his, and which still is his, and which he prays that we may behold. "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image" (II Cor. 3:18). Thus in beholding his glory we also may enter into his likeness.

City Versus Country

It cannot escape even a casual observer that the Bible begins with a scene in the garden to end in a city: one may be "nearer God's heart in a garden than anywhere else on earth"—but certainly "the dwelling-place of God is with men."

Giving and Taking Orders

He who will not accept orders has no right to give them; he who will not serve has no right to command; he who cannot keep silence has no right to speak.—Hubbard.

EDUCATION OR TRAINING?

There is certainly a great difference between education and training. Education is intellectual and spiritual. It opens the human mind and the human soul. By education we understand, we comprehend, we become sensitive to ideas which we might otherwise pass by. Training is improvement in ability to do things. A bricklayer can be trained to lay brick faster. A cook can be trained to prepare better meals. Training must come before education. We must train children to read in school before they can be educated in literature. One must be trained to add and multiply and to use the fundamentals in arithmetic before he can be educated in higher mathematics like calculus. Training is the use of tools and devices, education concerns itself with content and motives.

More than two thousand years ago, the Greek poet, Hesiod, wrote: "Before the gates of excellence the high gods have placed sweat. Long is the road thereto, and rough and steep at first. But when the height is achieved, then there is ease, though grievously hard in the winning." Those lines would be fine to have placed over the door of every elementary, high school, college, and university in the land. Every day we see young people fooled because they are led to believe they are being educated by passing and getting grades and credits, when as a matter of fact they are quite unfit for the opportunities they seek.

A survey has just been completed by this office which shows that 627 voters in Morgan county could not sign their names on the registration cards entitling them to participate in the affairs of electing men to office and all other privileges of suffrage. This means that 600 of about 4900 voters cannot read or write. One out of every eight voters cannot read the names on the ballots and must vote before the board.

This brings me to the point of my story I want to propose: Do these people want to read and write, and do they need it? And can they learn in a reasonably short time and will they do so if they have the opportunity? My answer is that in a number of places in this county they are doing that thing. They have learned to write letters, to read books, and become competent to carry on their business and make correct calculations in ordinary affairs. Should they be ashamed to admit they cannot read or write? I say no. It may be that some of the shrewdest minds have not learned to write. I know a man who is very prosperous and a good business man and in a trade will always use good judgment—better than I can. Yet he cannot write his name. There is now a new type of writing tablet which we are using that enables a person to learn to write in a very short time. I am asking that the adult teachers offer their services to those who desire to learn. It is a great opportunity to teach men and women, Jesus and Socrates and Plato taught adults.

BERNARD E. WHITT

WORK FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

James M. Perry, supervisor of the national youth administration in Morgan county, announced last week that he had received assignment cards for about 150 youths to begin work in Morgan county on the various projects. He also said there were 170 youths already at work. These are young people between 18 and 25 years of age. These people work 50 hours a month and receive between $10 and $15 each a month for this work.

There are sewing projects at Cannel City, Crockett, and West Liberty, and manual training at Ezel and West Liberty. At other places they are doing minor construction work and repairing of public buildings such as schools. Many schools have been painted and repaired. Building of walks and planting trees along highways and public property are other projects. In the sewing projects hundreds of garments have been made and turned over to the commodity office for distribution to relief persons. In the manual training department, hundreds of chairs and school desks have been made, also tables and teachers' desks and laboratory equipment for schools.

All this work is giving these young people valuable training in making clothing and cabinets which will later be worth more than the money they receive—the pride in making things worth while. The writer happened to be in the office of the supervisor when more than a dozen youths had come over muddy, almost impassable roads for more than twenty miles before eight o'clock to sign their cards and report for work.

WRIGLEY SCHOOL NEWS

I wonder why Beulah and Bonieta are such good friends.

I wonder why Merville smiles when Lovena is near.

What's wrong with Lester? (Ask Lizzie.)

Why do Valda and Emory Lee disagree so much?

Why are Eunice and Lavena always together? (Is it because Merville has a brother Paul?)

I wonder why Mr. Craft walks to West Liberty (home) every other night.

Why is Sylvia so interested in school—or is it Bonieta, one of the seniors, he is interested in?

Emory Lee Green—Dad, what is supposed to be the unluckiest month in the year in which to get married?

Father—I don't know. That's something everyone must find out for himself.

Miss Lemaster—Why don't you get married, Mr. Lacy?

Mr. Lacy—Why marry a woman when I can buy a parrot for $5?

Miss Lemaster—Yes, that shows once more how the men have the advantage of us women. We can't buy any kind of a bear for less than $200.

GOOD SPORT

The basketball season for Cannel City is over. The team made an excellent showing during the season, winning 21 out of 24 games. The result of the tournament was a disappointment to Cannel City fans. The team was licked by a Frenchburg team which was playing the game of its life.

The coach and the team wish to thank all the fans who gave such wonderful support during the year. The tournament was excellently managed by Major Gardner and well officiated by Taylor and Combs.

We wish to express our appreciation to the P.T.A. for uniforms and balls. We are also grateful to our supporters thruout the county who pulled for us to win. We also wish much luck to the Frenchburg and West Liberty teams in their quest for regional honors. D. C. BURTON

The Saunders Family Is a Pushing Bunch

The sidecar is occupied by Patricia, six, and Michael, three. Cost of operation is about one shilling (25 cents) a week.

HOW HE HELPED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HIS father bought a sugar bush. Back in the days when land was cheap. Of course, twice wrong of him to plant. He never loved his sugar bush, keep. An even in a rainy day. And went of all to put away. A little for his pocket money. When times get bad, as times will do. And yet he did, and then he did. And let the sugar bush be. And put the place in the hands of the sugar bush. (The out on Rural Number One.) The sugar bush is a sugar bush. Turned out about the way he thought. He didn't know, with what he had. Take the sugar bush of that day. I realize it's wrong to save. The sugar bush of that day is green. And the sugar bush in his hands. Should be condemned, condemned indeed. And yet I rather hesitate. To do it I have thought of late. That when that sugar bush was green. He saved for others than his own. Upon the poor-bet you will find. No mention of that son of his. Though other farmers feel the guilt. Of taxes for some man who is. He saved a little for his son. But he was not the only one. He saved his neighborhood the best. By planting a tree on the road. (The end of the road.)

THE FARMER SEES A STRANGE SIGHT

sized rats. There were gray old grand-father rats, and sleek young rats. Never had the farmer seen so many rats at one time. And it was plain to see that these rats were in a terrible fright. They were squeaking and squeaking with fear, and every one of them was running as fast as he could. They scattered in all directions. Some made for the big barn, some made for the henhouse, and others started off straight toward the next farm, in spite of the snow on the ground. The farmer shouted aloud for joy. He knew that there wouldn't be one rat left in that house by the time Billy Mink came out.

DO GREAT PIANISTS MAKE THE BEST PIANO TEACHERS?

IN AN article entitled "Facts and Fallacies in Piano Teaching," M. Coker points out that "skill in playing the piano does not imply skill in teaching the piano," and discusses the fact that many great pianists have been miserably poor piano teachers because they did not know the fundamentals of teaching or the psychology of the pupil. Some of the world's great piano teachers have been obscure pianists who never became known as great artists themselves, but they trained many pianists. Great musicians often are unable to come down to the level of students, and thus are unable to lead them. The result is that they sometimes discourage the pupil rather than help him.

First Aid to the Ailing House

EXPOSED WOOD PORCHES

A PART of a house that sooner or later is almost certain to give trouble is an open wood porch. As porches are usually built, even the best of floor paint will not last for more than a year or two, and wood steps and their supports are likely to rot where they rest on the earth. Water soaking into cracks between floor boards and under the edges of a porch also leads to rotting.

should be so finished that water cannot collect under them. They can be bedded in white lead, and further protected by strips of quarter-round or other molding, also bed in white lead.

The joints between the ends of porch railings and the columns or other parts that support them should be treated in the same way. Very commonly these joints open, and there will be rotting as water soaks in. Should these open joints appear, they should be packed with white lead, caulking compound, or something similar. With such precautions, repairs to a porch can be averted almost indefinitely.
